[1] All dates in year format e.g. 2020 with note containing additional information, if available. See "Source" for citation URLs.

[2] Citations of GLAMs' own communications (e.g. a press release) are preferred but 3rd party websites are OK if nothing else is available.

[3] Many GLAMs make some – but not all – of their eligible data open access (e.g. for specific projects or outputs) whilst maintaining non-open access policies for most of their data.

This column indicates this for each GLAM by stating either 'all eligible data' or 'some eligible data'.

[4] 1: Public domain compliant - No new rights are claimed in the data released. Users are ensured that any public domain materials remain in the public domain in digital form.

2: Copyright disclaimer - No new rights are claimed in the data released and no assertion is made that the data is conclusively in the public domain. The onus is on the user to ensure reuse is legally compliant.

3: Open compliant - New rights are claimed in the data released and the licence applied aligns with international definitions for "open" that permit commercial reuse.

[5] GLAM policy statements are often conflicting, subject to change and do not expressly disclaim copyright. To provide some clarity for survey users, this column contains links to the most relevant rights policy and terms of use information provided on GLAM websites (when available). These pages are often generic and lacking in detail so caveat emptor.

[6] Intellectual property policy for Intangible Cultural Heritage and Traditional Cultural Expressions

[7] The rights statement that the GLAM applies to its metadata (often not stated explicitly).

All metadata submitted to Europeana must be provided as CC0 therefore GLAMs publishing open data in Europeana have CC0 marked in this column.

[214] DM contacted LoC. Reply: 'Thank you for visiting the Library of Congress website and for using the Ask A Librarian service.

I believe you may safely estimate that more than two million items on the Library of Congress website have no known copyright restrictions or are in the public domain.

I do not have an exact number, but the website posts a hint at the bottom left of this page: <https://www.loc.gov/search/> . This is the number of items on the website that are available to researchers anywhere, as opposed to those with rights restrictions that allow the digital contents to be limited. Today that figure is nearly 2.5 million items. This figure is not the answer to your question because there are some "digital items," that are difficult for our systems to differentiate and some materials that are available online with permission from their rights holders--a stipulation presented on the website in the at the collection-level documentation or within the metadata for individual items. For example, catalog records for books for with a link to their records' MARC 856 fields, may link to a digital version of the book, but may also link to a publisher's description. This is a limitation of the record format with which we must live, at least for now. The 2.5 million figure also contains items for which the Library has been granted permission to post online; and for 11,000 rights-protected audio files in the National Jukebox collection <https://www.loc.gov/search/> that are posted as streaming files, with permission. The site also has items that may be in the public domain, but for which research has not been completed, so these remain restricted for off-site use.'
